Market Days

Spring is officially here, and that means one thing — Pittsburgh Farmers Markets are coming back! Markets across Western Pennsylvania will be opening in the coming weeks, offering local produce, fresh-baked breads, sweet treats, prepared foods, flowers, and more.

What is Farm to Table Buy Local?

We are a 501c3 nonprofit that connects people to local farms and community gardens. We provide a myriad of programming to promote real, fresh, local food, including food deliveries, garden education classes, and helping people access food assistance programs. We work in schools, community centers, affordable housing, and child care centers. The Heinz Endowments has supported our mission through grant awards since 2018.

Why are Farmers Markets so important?

We are lucky to have an abundance of agricultural producers in Western Pennsylvania, which allows us to eat local all year-round. Buying direct from local farms and food producers strengthens our local food system and provides us with nourishment, beauty and a connection to nature. It's a completely different shopping experience.

Where can I learn more?

Visit our website https://farmtotablepa.com/ for more information about our upcoming programs. There you can discover an extensive list of CSAs (Community Supported Agriculture), farms, farmers markets, retailers, u-pick farms, butchers, dairies that are located throughout the Western Pennsylvania region. By tapping these resources, you can continuously stock up on your family's favorite local foods: milk, butter, yogurt, eggs, cheese, baked goods, oatmeal, flour, honey, maple syrup, fruits, vegetables, meat, herbs and even beans.

ERIN HART

"You can smell the freshness of the food, and talk to the people who planted the seeds, tended the crops, fed the animals or tapped the trees."
